The Marriage Checkup Questionnaire

This inventory has been specifically designed to be used by couples in order to assess their marriage relationship either as part of a counselling experience or on their own. It is important to complete each section and question as thoughtfully and completely as you can. By answering these questions in writing, the following will be accomplished:

1. You will have a better overall perception and view of your marriage strengths. Issues and concerns will be identified and clarified. You will have a clearer picture of where you are and where you want to move ahead in your marriage. Your marriage future can be changed.
2. If This is used in counselling, it will assist your minister or counsellor with the effectiveness of your counselling. Several hours of counselling time will be saved by the completion of this form.
3. Many have found it easier to share their thoughts and feelings in writing and then discuss them either with their spouse or in a counselling setting.
4. Issues and goals of counselling that often take weeks to address will be focused on much sooner.

Please allow one to two hours to complete this inventory, responding to questions according to the way you have been feeling over the past several weeks. Do not share or discuss your responses with anyone.

If you and your spouse are completing this inventory outside of counselling, be sure to discuss only small portions at a time, perhaps taking one section at a time.

If this is to be used in counselling, complete and return this inventory to your minister or counsellor prior to your initial session if at all possible. If not, be sure to bring it with you. At some point in your counselling sessions, it may be helpful to discuss portions of this form with your spouse. Any portions shared will be done while both of you are present with the counsellor and with your consent.

Thank you for your cooperation.

Scoring Key

Statements 1,2,7,10, 13, 15, 17 and 18

To determine your score, add the numbers you made an X through for each of these eight statements. The sum reflects your score. To determine your spouse's score, add the numbers you circled for each of these eight statements. The sum reflects your spouse's score.

Your score _____

Your spouse's score _____

33-40	You're doing very well.
25-32	You're doing well.
17-24	Some areas need improvement.
9-16	Definite improvement needed.
0-8	The relationship needs major assistance.

Any statements that scored a 3 or lower would benefit from some work. Any statements with a communication level of 1 may need outside assistance.

Statements 3, 4, 5, 6, 8, 9, 11, 12, 14, 16, 19, 20 and 21

To determine your score, add the numbers you made an X through for each of these 13 statements. The sum reflects your score. To determine your spouse's score, add the numbers you circled for each of these 13 statements. The sum reflects your spouse's score.

Your score _____

Your spouse's score _____

53-65	The relationship needs major assistance.
40-52	Definite improvement needed.
27-39	Some areas need improvement.
14-26	You're doing well.
8-13	You're doing very well.

Any statements having a communication level of 3 or higher would benefit from some work. Any statements with a level of 5 may need outside assistance.

Sharing Responses

Make a date to share your responses with your spouse. Be sure to follow these positive communication guidelines when sharing responses:

1. Set a time and select a place where there are no interruptions from people, phones, etc.
2. Hold your spouse's hand (this helps to keep a lid on emotions).
3. Begin by sharing how you scored yourself. If any statements in the first set had a level of 3 or less, or if any statements in the second set had a level of 3 or more, say "Here is something I'd like you to think about" or "I would really appreciate it if you would work on this."

4. After you've both shared your scores, continue to hold your spouse's hand and share the scores that reflect how you see one another. Don't say "You do this" or "You don't do this" but, rather "This is my perspective" or "This is the way I see the situation." For any statement in the first set with a level of 3 or less, or for any statement in the second set with a level of 2 or more, say, "Here is something I'd like you to think about" or "I would really appreciate it if you would work on this."
5. When your spouse shares how they see you and makes a request, do not be defensive, point out an exception or blame the other. Just say, "Thank you for sharing your perspective. I'd like to think about that." You're not agreeing with your spouse or admitting he or she is correct. You're just considering his or her view.

FINANCES

What You Have Done to Improve and Enhance Your Marriage

1. What books have you read on marriage?
2. What books has your spouse read on marriage?
3. What conferences have you and your spouse attended?

Goals for Your Marriage

1. List three marital goals you have for the next year.

2. List three marital goals you have for the next five years.

How You Can Change Your Marriage

1. Think of an issue you would identify as a problem in your marriage and describe it.

2. When doesn't this problem happen?

3. What is different about these times?

4. How do you think differently?

5. If you woke tomorrow with these problems solved, what would you be doing differently?

Now, for each additional problem identified in your marriage, answer the five questions on a separate piece of paper. (You'll be surprised at the difference this makes.)

Your personal marriage assessment is completed. What did you learn? Were there any surprises or did this confirm what you were already feeling about your relationship?

What you do with this information is the big question. You see, the rest of your marriage story is yet to be written. And you have a lot of influence on how it unfolds. But don't attempt to write it by yourself. Create the rest of your marriage story with Jesus Christ guiding, instructing, encouraging and empowering you. He wants your marriage to be all you want it to be, to be fulfilling and reflecting His presence.

What can you do now? Continue to grow and make your marriage a priority. Whether you were encouraged or discouraged by your assessment, read the following resources:
